Dear Friend

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

283

Our recent short intercourse has left on my mind an impression of much interest. & this must be my apology for troubling you with the accompanying number of the periodicle, which I believe is doing an earnest & solid work in England in vitalizing Christianity. apart from the mere sectarian profession of it. — I believe also that this is your aim & desire, but I could not entirely agree with your remarks on the sacrifice of Christ. I would then ask as a favour to me, your perusal of the article. Rationalism & Ritualism P 341. Especially the extracts from Newman Hall.

I could add by the way that Newman Hall was among the few earnest & able public men who contended for the North at the commencement of your war. & I heard him deliver in our Town Hall an address which I think was afterwards printed as a tract & which you may have seen; lasting for from three to four hours, & listened to by an audience as crowded & attentive as at John Bright's meetings & with unflagging & enthusiastic interest. & shewing how the North

† In the early days of the war, before the Newcastle riots had been hampered by the power of the South. & how the President could undo what people here said he ought to. till the power of a military despotism came to his aid through the folly & wickedness of the South

There are also some interesting remarks on Colonel Wheeler in India which describe what was probably very similar to your own experience

With warm expressions of regard & esteem

I am

Very sincerely Yours
